South Dade Water and Soil Conservation District (#56)

The South Dade Soil and Water Conservation District is a 501-C3 non-profit governmental subdivision of the State of Florida whose mission is:

To provide local leadership in implementing conservation programs and technology that facilitates enhancement, sustainment and stewardship of our natural resources and environment.

- We offer the services of our Mobile Irrigation Lab and our Nursery Lab for free agricultural irrigation evaluations and best management practices.
- We are currently producing certified organic cow manure compost (Happy Holstein) in bags and in bulk deliveries.
- We distribute composted waste water residuals as a valuable soil amendment for commercial applications.
- We are also promoting in-vessel composting of all organic waste products including food waste, yard waste, animal waste, soiled paper and cardboard waste and animal carcasses.
